What Made the Forbidden Stitch so Forbidden

Alternative Obsessions The tenth Ming ruler, Zhengde, who ascended in 1505, grew tired of concubines and was obsessed with the life of an ordinary citizen. The new tomb was a complex of temples, gates, and pavilions, covered with gold leaf, and with gold and gilded-bronze ornaments hanging from the beams and the eaves. He would slip out in the night, in disguise, and frequent local brothels.
