Although the march stones of Aberdeen are easy to access, many are difficult to get to. Unfortunately, we do not know whether any problems occurred during the journey to the Low Countries. Of course, Aberdeenshire can already boast the oldest extant sheriff court book in Scotland 1503-1511 , but even William Croft Dickinson, possibly the most knowledgeable on Aberdeen and its courts and the editor of the Fife Sheriff Court Book appears to have been unaware of the existence of fifteenth-century sheriff court cases from Aberdeen.
