The electorate was further expanded by the , under which property qualifications in the counties were lowered. Includes unlimited choice of tea.

The House of Commons

The Speaker is assisted by three Deputy Speakers, the most senior of whom holds the title of Chairman of Ways and Means. A Speaker-elect cannot take office until she or he has been approved by the Sovereign; the granting of the royal approbation, however, is a formality. If the incumbent Speaker seeks a new term, then the House may re-elect him or her merely by passing a motion; otherwise, a secret ballot is held.
