Minsok munhwa ūi sae chŏnt'ong ūl kusang handa

During the first three official meetings held between January and March 1965, he was joined by fellow Waseda alumnus Yi Sangbaek 1904—1966 , a sociologist and historian, as well as historians Hwang Suyŏng 1918— and Yi Hongjik 1909—1970 , both Tokyo University alumni, archaeologist and art historian Kim Wŏllyong 1922—1993 , a graduate of Keijō Imperial University, and Kim Tujung 1896—1988 , a graduate of Kyoto University.

Family succession through adoption in the Chosun Dynasty

In the past there was a consensus among CPC members that holders should be at least sixty years old, but in recent years many younger holders have been appointed.

The Death of Hŏ Hamjang: Constructing a Dilemma for Officialdom in Eighteenth

Korea Between Religious Tradition and the Modern World by Chae-sik Chung, submitted to SUNY Press 4. He argues that a cultured people are able to find good use for the cultural property they have acquired and to let it further develop.

Uri nara ūi sik munhwa wa oesik sanŏp ūi chŏn'gae panghyang. (1988 edition)

Since 1948, however, the Education Department Kyodokwa of the Culture Bureau Munhwabu had taken on some of the heritage management-related duties. Some of them blamed her alleged lack of expertise on the fact that she never studied folk music until she began working for the Cultural Properties Management Office. Therefore, when To argues that he made his initial report in a fit of passion and haste, he is speaking not only to the Namwŏn magistrate, but really to his family as a whole.

Family succession through adoption in the Chosun Dynasty

In chapters 3 and 4, I relate the cases of respectively Kim Okshim and Pak Chunyŏng, whose failure to be appointed holder cannot be easily justified on the basis of a lack of skill, pedigree, or experience. The involvement of the US Army Military Government in Korea USAMGIK; 1945—1948 in securing the success of this operation would have also been grounded on this notion. All preexisting public and private schools came under strict control of the government-general, their curriculum dominated by language training, with science only introduced in the third year.

Colonial Foundations of Korean Cultural Policy

Villagers bore a responsibility to apprise the local officials of assaults promptly, whether the assault was fatal or not, so that the investigators might not lose any opportunity to collect valuable evidence especially if derived from examination of the corpse.

The Death of Hŏ Hamjang: Constructing a Dilemma for Officialdom in Eighteenth

The law made it obligatory for those who discovered relics to report them.
