The Differences of the Imams: Shaykh Al

Imam Malik may Allah be pleased with him replied, O leader of the faithful!.

The Differences of the Imams: Shaykh Al

Let us initially define the term Imamah: In Arabic, an Imam is a leader whom others follow, such as one who leads the prayer, who heads a group or even the Caliph.

The repercussions of these differences have reached such proportions that people have split up into various sects grappling and contending with one another. However, everyone is afflicted with forgetfulness, errors and other human shortcomings.

Differences of the Imams

This is a short but outstanding work and I highly recommend it. Shaykh Zakariyya married twice in his life. It is also called al-Imamah, because the Khalifah Caliph used to be called Imam, and because his obedience is compulsory and the people follow him as they follow the one who leads the prayer.

Why are there differences of opinion among the imams concerning fiqhi matters? Is it essential to follow one of the madhhabs?

None of the companions dared to resist and deny what he said.
