What he really wants, though, is a home of his own. That is the externality of the plot. Click here to read more about Often described as lewd, outrageous, and pornographic, Tropic of Cancer is the story of Henry Miller, a writer living in Paris.

The World's Best Books: Taste, Culture, and the Modern Library

A breeze blows up from the sea, tasting of brine and minerals, so fresh that a spontaneous cheer wafts along the crowded parade route. One struggles to imagine a man writing it. This explains surprising results like the No.

The 20 Best Books of a Decade That Unmade Genre Fiction

According to a article about the list, executives at Random House said they hoped that as the century drew to a close their list would encourage public debate about the greatest works of fiction of the last hundred years, thus both increasing awareness of the Modern Library and stimulating sales of novels the group publishes. Portia is sixteen, recently orphaned, and living in London with her brother and Anna, his fashionable but unfriendly wife.
