Intraoperative ureter identification with a novel fluorescent catheter

In babies and children who have a ureteral obstruction, the cause is usually a birth defect that affects their urinary tract. When the bladder empties, urine flows out of the body through a tube called the urethra at the bottom of the bladder.

A Study for Ureter Visualization, Using ASP5354 in Subjects Undergoing Laparoscopic/Minimally Invasive Colorectal Surgery

As pigs have less visceral adipose tissue than humans, their peritoneum is subsequently thinner. Additional tests may be needed per the findings.

Ureter Identification With IReDye 800BK

What are clinical trials for urinary tract imaging? In medicine, imaging produces pictures of bones, organs, and vessels inside the body. Currently, two clinical trials investigating the safety and efficacy or dosing of the IReDye 800BK have been completed and the results are pending publication.

Ureter Identification With IReDye 800BK

The proximal portion of the ureter was isolated and a ureterotomy was made. In most people, there is no damage or damage is minimal and temporary, healing on its own within a week or so.

Upper pole heminephrectomy: is complete ureterectomy necessary?

This can cause pain and put you at risk of infection.

Ureter Identification With IReDye 800BK

This type of exam includes injecting a small amount of radioactive material into the blood and using a special camera and computer. An MRA can also show.

Ureteral Obstruction: Symptoms, Causes & Treatment

The kidneys filter wastes and fluids to produce urine. The optical system allows the doctor to see inside the urethra and bladder.
