Kokugan

We should realize there exist worlds everywhere. To forget the self is to be actualized by myriad things. Nevertheless, this great ocean is neither a circle nor has directions.

When the myriad things are without self, there is no delusion, no enlightenment, no Buddhas, no ordinary beings, no birth, no extinction.

Tanaka

It is just that when there is a great need, the use is great, and when there is a small need, the use is small.
