Neale's patent expired in 1710, when Parliament extended the English postal system to the colonies. The Penny black was sufficient for a letter less than half an ounce to be sent anywhere within the United Kingdom. The Act replaced the cabinet-level Post Office Department with a new federal agency, the , and took effect on July 1, 1971.

National Stamp Collecting Month: Postcards & Postcrossing

The first wave of gold shipments were made semi-weekly between January 11 and June 17, 1937. The 1-cent stamp was printed in blue, and features a central portrait of our first postmaster general, Benjamin Franklin, in profile facing right.
