LETTERS AND PAPERS FROM PRISON BOOK

While LPP was a book that I struggled through, and gained little in the way of personal gratification or knowledge, LPP is at the end of the proverbial day, a self-history on a Lutheran theologian, and the life that he held while being imprisoned. I love consuming knowledge and learning things about different cultures. Bonhoeffer developed another important dichotomy between concerns for the ultimate and the penultimate.

Death Row Inmates Struggle With Belief and Religion

A project of the Institute for History, University of Vienna. As a final note, sending a prisoner a magazine subscription goes a long way toward keeping them connected to the world at large, which they will someday need to re-assimilate into. Secondly, ethical theology is not concerned with identifying who is and who is not a Christian, but seeks identification through confession of Christ as savior Shaping the Future 59.

Germany: Letters and Correspondence

He even stated that the gospel was not primarily about individual salvation.
