Specific documentation criteria and examples of common services can be found on the website.

Disability Access Services

Conclusion: We recommend that a clear policy concerning the support of students with disabilities be developed with the following aims: guide decisions on how disability data should be used, define roles that different university departments must play in facilitating access to curricula for all students, influence suitable development of teaching and learning resources, stimulate research on success and completion rates of students with disabilities and mandate restructuring of programmes that are currently inaccessible to students with disabilities. To address these technological barriers, Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center El Paso TTUHSC El Paso recently launched an initiative to make vast improvements to its online offerings for students with disabilities.
