Black Hunting Whip by Monica Edwards

Or were the clothes just something that was off pat? Most striking is the amount of skilled help rendered by Dion, Lindsey and Peter when their parents fall ill with influenza. Lindsey wants to save the tree and goes around asking everyone for legends or information about yew trees; she also tries to raise money for fencing.

Archaeologists have labelled this site as a rarity in the Sydney region, and the paintings and etching are believed to be 1,000 to 5,000 years old. Nearby, Botany Bay, the Cooks River and Georges River provided fish and shellfish. This is also the book in which Tamzin discovers her talent for sculpture in plasticene.

The principal characters in the novels are Tamzin Grey, Rissa Birnie, Meryon Fairbrass and Roger Lambert.

Punch Bowl Farm Series by Monica Edwards

Edwards' chief illustrator was Geoffrey Whittam, although the first four books Wish for a Pony, No Mistaking Corker, The Summer of the Great Secret and The Midnight Horse had illustrations by Anne Bullen; Joan Wanklyn illustrated Spirit of Punchbowl Farm, The Wanderer and Punchbowl Harvest, and illustrated Punchbowl Midnight. It seems that they will never understand each other's point of view, until they are linked together by strange and enthralling experiences which reveal to them the past history of the tree, and, in sympathy at last, they see what must be done. This song is sung by Primus.

In VG dustwrapper showing overall minor wear, slight discolouration. After they end up staying there, Tanzin and Rissa et al find they have to run the farm and patrol the boundaries. One of four children, her father, the Revd Harry Newton was a vicar.

Black Hunting Whip by Monica Edwards

Having firmly slapped Andrea away from Meryon, Monica Edwards allows the other Punchbowl characters a bit more leeway when it comes to romance, because Rissa and Roger are shown to have feelings for Dion and Lindsay.
