Bills of Rights in Canada

The Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms is one part of the Canadian Constitution, created in 1867. When Pierre Trudeau wanted to repatriate the constitution from Britain, he encountered heavy opposition from the provinces, mainly Quebec. But inequalities of treatment may also be particularly harmful, whether or not any such group is victimized, if the subject matter of the discrimination — the benefit withheld or penalty inflicted on an unequal basis is an especially important one.
