The History of Carbonated Waters and the Nauheim Baths: The Benefits of Water

In the early part of the year 1894 I was favoured with a similar opportunity of bringing forward a brief account of my own experience of the Schott system. Theodor Schott, in which were explained the 'principles and practice of the treatment of chronic diseases of the heart by means of mineral baths and exercises, which had been elaborated by him and his deceased brother. The BMJ Group complements the activities of the BMA.
