The Role of the News Media in Peace Negotiations: Variations over Time and Circumstance

Human Rights, Self-Determination and Political Change in the Occupied Palestinian Territories. To give just one example, Palestinian peace negotiator Saeb Erekat is frequently quoted by the Western media. A second problem is encountered when a massive influx of foreign journalists are suddenly sent to cover a breaking story in the Middle East, journalists with little or no understanding of both the languages and the cultures of the region 16-17.

The celebrants waived photographs of wanted terrorist. This IDF investigation was criticized by both and for ignoring evidence.

Media coverage of the Arab

It is ironic then, that: While the American press is perceived abroad as being unambiguously sympathetic to Israel, the most visible form of media criticism in the United States takes the opposite view-that the US press is constantly propagandizing for the Palestinian cause.
