With the conclusions of the Luxembourg European Council and the considerations contained in Agenda 2000 as its guide, the Commission has approved a proposal for a Council Regulation based on Article 235 of the Treaty, establishing a pre-accession structural instrument. The Fund's sole objective is to use Community financing to help to secure projects in the area of the environment, together with transport infrastructure projects in the area of trans-European networks.

APPLYING THE STRUCTURAL FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS TO THE APPLICANT COUNTRIES BEFORE AND AFTER
ACCESSION a The proposals: Agenda 2000 In the chapter on structural policies of the impact study featured in its communication on Agenda 2000, the Commission underlines that the most notable change which will be brought about by enlargement will be an unprecedented reduction in the average per capita GDP of the Community, similar in scale to that resulting from the three previous enlargements put together. Supports the Commission proposal as to the eligibility of the Member States with a per capita GNP of less than 90% of the Community average; 7.

Thus, the overall evaluated cost is reduced and it is the net figure which is submitted to the Commission. The recognition expressed therein of possible synergy between public-sector and private sources of funding should therefore also be reflected in the approval criteria laid down in Article 10 of the Regulation.

Considers that the definition of the double conditionality for the suspension of the financial assistance by the Cohesion Fund and the corresponding decisional procedure must be presented in a clearer way; Paragraph 7.7. At the same time, the European Parliament needs to be informed of decisions concerning these financial corrections.

Front Matter : International Monetary Fund Annual Report 1995:

The cohesion countries should benefit from a guarantee of continued solidarity which takes into account the success achieved in economic and social cohesion. Lastly, the resolution stresses that it is important that the financial repercussions of enlargement should not undermine the principles of solidarity and economic and social cohesion within the Union.

Front Matter : International Monetary Fund Annual Report 1995:

While the two issues are separate they are inter-related. These figures will have no immediate effect on the application of the Structural Funds, insofar as during the forthcoming 2000-2006 programming period the economic data of the Fifteen will continue to form the basis for applying the criteria which govern whether areas are eligible to receive assistance.
