Four key challenges for Singapore in next 50 years, Singapore News & Top Stories

Both Almond and Powell reiterate that political development shows the formation of new capabilities, with specialised role-structure and differentiated orientation which enables the political system to deal with new challenges.

History of Singapore

In July 1947, separate Executive and Legislative Councils were established and the election of six members of the Legislative Council was scheduled for the following year.

Economic and political outline Singapore

How is it possible that Singapore grew so much, in such a short period of time? After assuming office in June 1959, Lee Kuan Yew explained in his memoirs why he and his colleagues were determined to keep Singapore free from corruption: We were sickened by the greed, corruption and decadence of many Asian leaders. On 9 August 1965, the Parliament of Malaysia voted 126—0 in favor of a constitutional amendment expelling Singapore from the federation.

Singapore's Political System

On 17 March 1989, Lee Hsien Loong, the Minister for Trade and Industry, recommended a hefty salary increase for senior civil servants because the low salaries and slow promotion in the Administrative Service had contributed to its low recruitment and high resignation rates. The immigrant Chinese population in Singapore donated generously to Tongmenghui, which organised the 1911 that led to the establishment of the Republic of China. The state and federal governments also had conflicts on the economic front.

has created high housing ownership among the population. Prostitution, gambling, and drug abuse particularly of opium were widespread.

Asia's Next Great Challenge: To Balance Growth and Political Development

The huge economic development I described above thus paved the way for Singapore to become a center in the capitalist world-system. Lieutenant-General, led by a Japanese officer, marches under a flag of truce to negotiate the capitulation of Allied forces in Singapore, on 15 February 1942. Facing severe unemployment and a housing crisis, Singapore embarked on a modernisation programme beginning in the late 1960s through the 1970s that focused on establishing a manufacturing industry, developing large public housing estates, and investing heavily in public education and infrastructure.

The PAP returned to power, winning 82 of the 84 parliamentary seats and 66% of the votes. Many early Chinese and Indian immigrants came to Singapore to work in various plantations and tin mines and they were predominantly male, and large number of them would return to their home countries after they had earned enough money.
