Long-departed Dubliner's in their streets and parks return to the reader's gaze: babies in perambulators, lords, ladies, servants, and professional classes, army officers, constabulary, and urchins are all to be found, alongside monuments subsequently blown up and a wide choice of goods and services, from Zebra Grate Polish to High Class Artificial Teeth. The day was Thursday, 16 June 1904. In these haunting images the departed walk into our vision once again.
