A New Declaration of Dependence—On God

This may reflect opinions about the way in which the United States has implemented its pro-democracy agenda, and also about America's democratic values themselves. Generally, Griswold, reflecting the traditional view, sees marriage bringing two people into a union for common purposes centered, most obviously, around procreation and the education of children.

A Defense of Liberty Against Tyrants

Social scientists studying the family note that the decline of marriage is associated with social ills and troubles for the individuals. Their arguments seem to be driven more by the practical conditions they faced in the United States than any theological disputations with Rome.

The Liberty Song

These defenses of the family unite in seeing marriage as an institution, as something that connects human goods for the benefit of all.

10th Amendment protects against government overreach

But his greatest public utterances were prophetic speeches, speeches that soar and move the soul because they display powers higher than cold, calculating, unimpassioned reason.
