Easter in Germany: Sorbs, Wends and Easter eggs

It's done similarly in the article about the origin of the serbs.

Wendish Heritage Society Australia 1986

In 1688 Jurij Hawštyn Swětlík translated for Catholic Sorbs. As the original congregation grew in the early decades, it spread for miles around the town of Serbin, and daughter congregations were formed: Fedor, Manheim, Warda, Loebau, Greens Creek, Winchester, and Lincoln. The probate record has her actual signature in several places.

Talk:Sorbs

The Christianization of the Wends began prior to the German conquest, but it was vigorously promoted by the Germans. Do they share in the history of the Sorbs, do they speak the slavic tongue or even know of it? I would greatly appreciate this clarification of information. It is also similar to Russian, Slovenian and Slovakian flag.

Easter in Germany: Sorbs, Wends and Easter eggs

She was born in Germany September 6, 1838. Both stories were just folklore used to scare people into not following the traditions of witchcraft. The trip took the group across the Lausitz region - Lusatia in English - about 150 kilometers southeast of Berlin.

Talk:Sorbs

Under the regime, sorbic schools, publishers, theaters and many other cultural institutes were founded. An outbreak of cholera forced the ship to stop over in Ireland and an estimated 81 Sorbs died during the journey. This seems to be an important part of modern Sorbian history I was wondering why it was deleted.

A Rock Against Alien Waves: A History of the Wends by Charles Wukasch

I therefore added this information and deleted the quote, since the Domowina wants help from Europe, not only Poland.
