Stone Circles & Archaeology on Bodmin Moor

There are also plenty of old engine houses to spot as you walk, as the local area was quarried and mined in the 19th Century. The Hurlers Stone Circles The legend of the Hurlers Stone Circles Cornwall, especially Bodmin Moor, has a lot of legends surrounding their ancient sites. In the NE side of the circle there is a jumble of stones that may have been part of a burial cist.

The Hurlers Stone Circles

It is quite possible to get lost. Churches are usually easy to find.

The Hurlers Stone Circles On Bodmin Moor

Multiple stone circles are often associated with sites between rivers, places through which traders and travellers would naturally pass. Just to the west of the circles are two standing stones known as. If you wanted more extensive walks you can travel to Sharp Tor, Rough Tor, Brown Willy, Hawks Tor and Showery Tor too.

Even if it's on their own! At Rough Tor a rare possibly unique Neolithic causeway curves across the landscape. A strip of granite paving, found in excavation, ran between this and the central circle. The reason why these are quite unique in England is that not only are the three circles arranged so close together but they also have been arranged in a perfect circle.
