Crime and punishment records

Most records relating to crime and punishment contain personal information — if the records relate to people who were born less than 100 years ago, access restrictions apply. Police Outside of London, Justices of the Peace were first permitted to establish county forces under the 1839 County Police Act, but it was not mandatory until the County and Borough Police Act of 1856. Often the jurisdiction was limited considerably by the financial value of what was in dispute but undoubtedly they transacted a great deal of business, primarily relating to civil cases concerning debt and bankruptcy.

Key collections

The format and language can be a little off-putting for first-time users or even second- or third-time users, to be frank and I think that explains why Quarter Sessions records remain relatively under-used. The of Hertfordshire hold their own records. London see also Middlesex 291 Scrapbook of social reformer Robert Owen containing acc.
