The Life and Letters of William Sharp and Fiona Macleod. Volume 3

There are here collected one hundred and twenty stories for seventeen holidays--stories grave, gay, humorous, or fanciful; also some that are spiritual in feeling, and others that give the delicious thrill of horror so craved by boys and girls at Halloween time. She did not go herself to market, but disposed of her crops through the agency of Guibert Falliot, at the sign of the Abreveurs of St.
