Focus on Proficiency

Read the text about how people can get a little crazy when they go vacation. Choose the word that completes the text.

Most (O) or us go a little crazy when we get off (1) holiday, but some go completely mad. They see giant rats eating through their luggage and even lose their mother-in-law in (2) back of a stolen caravan. So says World Cover Direct, the holiday insurer. These are just some of the claims the company (3) received in the past 12 months.

A director said, 'One of our policyholders skied into a tree (4) he was on holiday and made a claim for injuries. What he didn't mention was that he (5) blind and in the process of testing a new radar system for blind skiers.'

But what if you were in the Mediterranean in August and had (6) much sun? Take a dip in the pool, sit in the shade for a while or phone your holiday insurance company requesting repatriation. (7) you were 'feeling a bit hot'? One holiday maker, (8) was in Spain, did just that.

What grade would you give the second one? Yes, school ratings should incorporate both proficiency and growth but should they, as Mike and Aaron urge, give far heavier weight to growth? The other coach starts with aquatic newbies and, after a few lessons, some are getting across but most are foundering mid-pool and a few have drowned.
