Local Government and Urban Governance in Lusophone African Countries: From Colonial Centralism to Post

England's trade focus was shifted decisively from commodities to personnel with the RAC. Economic motivation to end the slave trade. The historian Walter Rodney contends that it was a decline in the profitability of the triangular trades that made it possible for certain basic human sentiments to be asserted at the decision-making level in a number of European countries—Britain being the most crucial because it was the greatest carrier of African captives across the Atlantic.

What Were the Effects of the British Taking Over Africa?

For the first time, West African cities developed a new class of unemployed people especially in cities. Branches of the movement were established in Lagos and Gold Coast. The circle became insatiable as more and more slaves were brought across to make more and more products for sale back in Europe to make more money to reinvest in the slave trade.
