Research Assistant

Detailed guidance on digital archiving can be found in the OAIS reference model , the Guide to Good Practice section of the Archaeology Data Service website , the Digital Archiving and Networking Services DANS , and websites that follow or instigate developments and discuss these, such as JISC and the Forum on Information Standards in Heritage FISH. Reference should be made to national, regional or local standards and bibliographical information for these can be found on the part of the ARCHES website.

Archaeological Archives Forum (AAF)

Artifacts should be bagged in 4 mil polyethylene bags with Ziploc closures.

Arches Wiki: 4. Care and Curation of the Archive

Digital data should be subject to internationally, nationally, regionally or locally recognised information technology management procedures. The E-CURATORS project, supported by an SSHRC Insight grant, seeks to hire a Research Assistant to help with research data management, analysis and project communications.

International Journal of Digital Curation, 6 2 , 78—88.

NPS Archeology Program: Managing Archeological Collections

As digitisation and computer literacy increase, the archaeological record will become more accessible and public. Visiting scholars can make arrangements for on-site study or materials can be transferred to approved curation facilities for long-term intensive analyses. Burkhardt, Fredson Bowers, and Ignas K.

Archaeological constructs : an aspect of theoretical archaeology. Although these file types have been isolated here, in many cases such files can feed into or be the product of other techniques or applications that are discussed elsewhere in the Guides. The Secretary is Claire Tsang.

Curation Guidelines

Although much of the content in the original ADS Guides remains applicable, in many areas the relevant technologies have developed considerably over the subsequent years. The association has, however, identified the need for revision of their ethics statement to include, among many other issues, mention of collections care.

Guides to Good Practice: GuideAim

This approach precludes costly re-digitisation in the future while ensuring maximum accessibility and reusability of the data. If the originals are to be kept in the laboratory as reference material, then the documentation should be in the archive in long term storage and where possible a duplicate set of slides should accompany these records. Bags must be clearly labeled with provenience information.
