Conflicts in school

Don't ask the question unless you are prepared to hear the answer, especially the wrong answer for you. The board and leadership team at a Christian school must learn to engage in constructive conflict, which is necessary if the school is to mature and become all that God would have it become.

Chilliwack school board trustee Barry Neufeld is under the microscope again, this time in court. Age thirteen — sixteen years old is characterized by increased resentment, suspicion and anxiety. The School Superintendents Association AASA sees the potential for such tensions with the superintendent on the rise, as the line separating administration from oversight gets increasingly blurred.

Conflict Resolution: What to Do When a School Board is Out of Control

It is the second quality that we should seek in our board and team members. Most superintendents who are fired failed to read the handwriting on the wall. After the groups merged, the co-CEOs divided up supervision by the regions in which they had already been operating.
