Portugal: Improve EU single market for post

III Making the best use of preventive mechanisms The prevention of national measures contrary to EU law in the Member States will help to ensure a level playing field for citizens and businesses in the single market and avoid lengthy infringement proceedings. An overview of released Work Programmes related to previous years is available.

European digital single market

The ELA will assist the Commission and Member States in ensuring that the EU rules on labour mobility and social security coordination are enforced in a fair, simple and effective way, making it easier for citizens and business to reap the benefits of the single market.

Highly interesting solutions were found. The slight delays foreseen in the adjusted Work Programme 4 for a number of initiatives reflect the need to learn and integrate lessons from the crisis, to allow time for proper consultation or to ensure that better regulation principles are respected. This was also reinforced in a letter signed by all Member States and submitted at the Coreper II meeting on 29 November 2019.

Current enforcement challenges Trade within the single market accounts for 56 million European jobs and the estimated economic benefits range between 8% and 9% of EU GDP. II Improving the transposition, implementation and application of EU rules Incorrect transposition, implementation and application of EU rules creates barriers and obstacles to a smooth functioning of the single market.

Mutual recognition in the context of the follow

Citizens and businesses cannot fully benefit from their free movement rights, businesses cannot realise the economies of scale that the single market can offer, consumers are put at risk by non-compliant products or enjoy less choice, security of energy supply is endangered and EU environmental and climate goals become more difficult to achieve. Building on this approach, the Commission will adopt an annual single market Enforcement Strategic Report , identifying specific areas of concern and priorities for enforcement taking into consideration the findings of the European Semester.
