Pharmacy in Public Health: Basics and Beyond

Atiu lies off the lee coast of Mitiaro, the coast which also contains the only sheltered passages where ocean going canoes can land, including war canoes. The questions of interest are, are these examples of discrete and different settlement patterns or is there a more complex historical relationship involved? This is indicated archaeologically by the scattered settlement areas described above and is also reflected in a number of early historic accounts Crocombe 1964, Gilson 1980, Williams 1838. The Lower Maungaroa Cluster RAR.

Gallagher, PharmD Temple University School of Pharmacy Description: This is an introduction to the concepts and applications of the discipline of public health designed for pharmacists or pharmacy students. Thus there was a very close association between circumscribed economic land units the tapere and particular social groupings the ngati. The marae itself lies only metres from one of the richest taro swamps and the upper terraces to the south back onto an extensive area of rich dryland soils.

This type of structure is described traditionally as a house of entertainment and the excavated example on Aitutaki AIT 3 is a 21 by 10 m rectangular stone enclosure with a pebble floor. The expansion inland, the development of wet field agriculture and the evolution of the marae complex holds the key to understanding late period sociopolitical organisation and land tenure practices. The third and final section contains chapters of public health activities where pharmacists can become involved and the pharmacy profession can take a leading role.
