Elastic strain energy density decomposition in failure of ductile materials under combined torsion

Analysis of the electrochemical profiles supported by density functional theory calculations reveals that the origin of the enhanced catalytic activity is linked to the mixing of Ru and Mn d-orbitals and O p-orbitals at the conduction band which strongly overlap with the formal redox energy of  $O_2$  in solution.

Ductile Failure

This curve acknowledges the fact that the resistance to fracture increases with growing crack size in elastic-plastic materials.
