When an organization finds a good PR consultant, they hang on to them for life! The only thing to worry about at this step is ensuring that you identify the types of resources required to accomplish the activity. For example, when I mentioned earlier that I had become an expert as a fund-raising consultant, I knew that every client who hired me was doing so partly on the basis of my track record alone.

Those unfamiliar with advanced scheduling techniques should stick with this type, as little can be done here to get you in trouble. Many associations conduct their own research and publish reports and journals to share their discoveries with the community. There are normally several work packages required in order to fulfill a single WBS element.
