Nabi sallallahu alaihi wasallam also remained silent and did not say anything. This is the absurd conclusion that would emerge if we accepted your erroneous analogy of talaq on a thoughtless oath.

Aayat e Ash

This is for the ease and consideration of the wife as much as it is for the man.

Aayat e Ash

To fit a person into one of these and thereafter apply the ruling is no easy job. We analyze some of the characteristics of cocaine to determine the closest example of it in Shariah. On the other hand, the wife will be forced to live a life of suspense; she will be a wife in theory but in reality she is neither here nor there.

This analogy is invalid as the prohibition of a woman travelling without a mahram is expressly stated in the Hadīth.

Qasas an Nabiyyin Vol 1

I did search and find a couple more examples but am not sure of the source. This is the deen of Allah.
