Changing Distribution of Protestants in Ireland 1861

Thomas died in 1883 and Jane In 1912. In such a situation, you may be able to find your ancestor in the census by using a smaller surname index for the parish or town of interest. Including non-religious people and non-respondents who were brought up in Protestant or other Christian denominations, less than half of the population has been Protestant since 2011.

Perhaps, a mistake was made when these large indexes were made, or a person's name was not easy to recognize in the census enumeration book, or the surname was spelled differently. From 1823 to 1864, records were kept of people who paid taxes to the Church of Ireland or the government in Ireland.

CAIN: Background Information on Northern Ireland Society

Results from censuses before the 1960s are in printed reports. In Northern Ireland, a census was also taken in 1926, then in 1931 limited , 1951, 1961, 1971, 1981, 1991, 2001 and 2011. The same information as the 1841 census.
