Kentucky poets write new poems about coronavirus pandemic

The poet laureate program is administered by the Kentucky Arts Council. Dad spent his summers on a ranch in northeastern Montana. In this poem, Transtromer, a former winner of the Nobel Prize in Literature, plays with the tug and pull of the seasons by contrasting it with the tug and pull of the words we say and the language that we can't.

Appalachian Poetry

Conrad lived in Ohio—a German he is, you know— The house stood in broad cornfields, stretching on, row after row; The old folks made me welcome; they were kind as kind could be; But I kept longing, longing, for the hills of Tennessee. Additional Details: The moonlight falls the softest, In Kentucky. And in the time of coronavirus, we have plenty of those.

In Kentucky (James H. Mulligan Poems)

I thought I was the only person in the world who knew kentucky belle.
