Could Human Enhancement Turn Soldiers Into Weapons That Violate International Law? Yes

Instead of turning to traditional mechanisms of nuclear arms control, we found a powerful discursive tool in international humanitarian and human rights law.

precipice of inhumanity over which nations and men will not throw themselves, then, why.

Weapons, desire, and the making of war

However, others disagree that allowing checks will not only force those who have bad intentions to sneak behind the law but to continue their plans. Did the bombs save more lives than they cost—no one will ever know—all we can do is speculate on what may have happened.

Requiring private firearm sellers to document the sale of firearms is also vital in order to prevent a rise of illegal guns.

Arguments for and Against Gun Control

The first article of the BTWC states that: Each State Party to this Convention undertakes never in any circumstances to develop, produce, stockpile or otherwise acquire or retain: 1 microbial or other biological agents, or toxins whatever their origin or method of production, of types and in quantities that have no justification for prophylactic, protective or other peaceful purposes; 2 weapons, equipment or means of delivery designed to use such agents or toxins for hostile purposes or in armed conflict. This is somewhat of an anomaly when one considers the increasing attention given to terrorism at both the national and international level.

Weapons, desire, and the making of war

Putting soldiers or policemen on the witness stand is politically dangerous. It was not until the 1980s that negotiations for a more comprehensive chemical weapons treaty got underway in earnest.

Weapons, desire, and the making of war

For complete classification of this Act to the Code, see Short Title note set out under section 2751 of this title and Tables. It is regarded that ease of use of the guns pose threats to the public.

It is also very possible that Japan may have surrendered without the planned invasion of the home islands. For torture, when committed by a state, expresses the state's ultimate view that human beings are expendable. Police forces across the world have adopted teargases and chemical sprays as means for riot control and apprehending suspects.
