Reconstructing Woman explores a scenario common to the works of four major French novelists of the nineteenth century: Balzac, Flaubert, Zola, and Villiers. Furthermore, through the representation of the power of language to do that shaping, the authors envision that their own texts would perform that function. This journal has an extensive book review section covering a variety of disciplines.

Analysis of Toni Morrison's Novels

His grandfather Jake had fallen through the branches of a tree when Solomon dropped him, trying to take his last baby son back with him.

What does it add to the plot, to the relationships between the characters, and to their class distinction? Guitar is free to kill his friend, but Milkman soars. The situation is ripe for romance, but Balzac does not meet our expectations in the way we imagine he will, because Raphaël is not interested in this impoverished Pauline, who cannot afford the feminine trappings he desires.

Analysis of Toni Morrison's Novels

Sula does not substitute a romantic dream for the reality of that physical experience. I loved reading this book. After a little more modeling, she wants to run her own business, perhaps a boutique.
