The Country Parson, by George Herbert; Chapters 1

The Creator, who can't wait to destroy. But the Parson having a double aime, and making a hook of his Charity, causeth them still to depend on him; and so by continuall, and fresh bounties, unexpected to them, but resolved to himself, hee wins them to praise God more, to live more religiously, and to take more paines in their vocation, as not knowing when they shal be relieved; which otherwise they would reckon upon, and turn to idlenesse.

The Country Parson by Honoré de Balzac

Therefore, to manage your expectation, you should just consider him as a white rose. And is in contention for them whither to live, or dy; be with them, or Christ, verse 23.

Rosa 'The Country Parson'

For questions cannot inflame or ravish, that must be done by a set, and laboured, and continued speech.

The Country Parson: His Character and Rule of Holy Life by George Herbert

Its main character, Veronique de Graslin has committed some terrible sin of which we do not learn until the very last chapter though we suspect it. But chiefly, and above all things, they are to frequent Sessions and Sizes; for it is both an honor which they owe to the Reverend Judges and Magistrates, to attend them, at least in their Shire; and it is a great advantage to know the practice of the Land; for our Law is Practice.

James Woodforde

The blessings of this life, Proverbs 22. Therefore those he meets on the way he blesseth audibly, and with those he overtakes or that overtake him, hee begins good discourses, such as may edify, interposing sometimes some short, and honest refreshments, which may make his other discourses more welcome, and lesse tedious.

Rosa 'The Country Parson'

There's a complex history to the book: published in one part in 1837, and then in another part shortly after that seemed totally unconnected, and then those two were published together with a third one which explains the connection and moves the story forward, but during Balzac's final year of life. His white blooms still look very pretty though.

The frost this Morning more severe than Yesterday. Hee that comes to the Sacrament, hath the confidence of a Guest, and hee that kneels, confesseth himself an unworthy one, and therefore differs from other Feasters: but hee that sits, or lies, puts up to an Apostle: Contentiousnesse in a feast of Charity is more scandall then any posture. The fruit of this blessing good Hannah found, and received with great joy, I Sam.
