Arabic theses in Antiquities

The effect was much different than that produced by scorching a cloth with a hot statue.

The Shroud of Turin

The final judgement generally depends on whether one in inclined to stress the positive or the negative evidence. On the Shroud, the pattern over the right eye exactly matches the size and shape of some of the cruder coins leptons of the procuratorial series in Judea, especially those of Gratus A.

ICHAJ 14

The 1978 scientific study of the Shroud of Turin. The main aspects on which the research has focused concern the choice of materials, perception of the scale factor and educational contents. Establishing the authenticity of the Shroud does not, of course, hinge on convincing every investigator, still less on resolving all difficulties and unknowns.

ICHAJ 14

The paper summarizes the results of the fieldwork and discusses the material culture, economy and chronology of the site in the broader context of the Late Neolithic of northern Jordan and the surrounding area.
